MEDICINAL.

FOR OLD PEOPLE!

In old people the nervous system is weakened, and that must be strengthened. One of the most prominent medical writers of the day, in speaking of the prevalence of rheumatic troubles among the aged, says: "The various pains, rheumatic or other, which old people often complain of, and which materially disturb their comfort, result from disordered nerves." There it is in a nutshell—the medicine for old people must be a nerve tonic. Old people are beset with constipation, flatulency, drowsiness, diarrhoea, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia. These diseases are of nervous origin. Faine's Celery Compound, that great nerve tonic, is almost a specific in these disorders, and by its regulating influence on the liver, bowels, and kidneys, removes the disorders peculiar to old age. Old people find it stimulating to the vital powers, productive of appetite, and a promoter of digestion.

Sold by druggists. $1.00. Six for $5.00. Send for eight-page paper, with many testimonials from nervous, debilitated, and aged people, who bless Faine's Celery Compound.

A Frightful Marine Disaster.

One of the most terrible marine disasters that has ever occurred on the Pacific coast happened yesterday morning in the Bay of San Francisco, at a short distance from the Golden Gate. In a dense fog the steamship Oceanic crashed into the steamer City of Chester, causing the latter vessel to sink within five minutes after the collision.
Twenty of the steerage passengers and ten of the cabin passengers of the ill-fated vessel lost their lives. The steamer City of Chester left San Francisco at 9:30, and started on her regular trip to Eureka, on the northern coast of California. The Chester steamed slowly down the bay, and when within two miles of the Heads encountered a thick fog. Capt. Wallace began to blow his steamer's whistle to warn all vessels of his approach. The Chester proceeded cautiously on her course till off Port Paint, when the hoarse sound of another whistle floated across the water. Captain Wallace answered the signal, and gave prompt warning to the stranger to pass on the port side. This was evidently not understood, for in a moment those on board saw the huge bow of the Occidental and Oriental steamer Oceanic emerge from the fog.
The Oceanic had just arrived from Hong Kong and Yokohama, and was moving up the bay to her dock. The huge steamer was so close to the Chester that there was no possibility for the latter to escape. The cabin passengers were nearly all on deck, and the captain, seeing the danger, called to them to prepare for the shock. A panic ensued at once, particularly among the women and children, of whom there was a large number. The Oceanic struck the City of Chester on the port side at the gangway, and the shock was terrific. Her bow cut into the Chester's upper works, and then crashed down the bulwarks, tearing the great timbers and iron plates and breaking into the staterooms and cabin. The wildest confusion prevailed among the passengers, who crowded together, shrieking with fear and others praying for help. The bow of the Oceanic crashed into the middle section of the City of Chester, cutting her almost in halves, and causing her to reel under the terrible blow. When the vessels were locked a number of the City of Chester's passengers were passed over the Oceanic's bow and rescued in that way. As soon as the large steamer could clear herself, she swung around and immediately began to lower her boats. At the moment of the shock most of the officers and crew of the City of Chester seemed to lose possession of their senses, and several passengers stated afterwards that some of the crew took the first opportunity to climb aboard the Oceanic, leaving the passengers to cut away the boats.
One of these was lowered as soon as possible and a number of passengers taken off.
Others provided themselves with life preservers and jumped overboard. The greater portion, however, were compelled to remain on the steamer, which began to settle immediately after the collision. Torrents of water rushed into her hold, and in five minutes after the collision the City of Chester had disappeared. She sank in fifty fathoms of water. Those of the passengers and crew who came to the surface were picked up by the Oceanic's boats, but the greatest number were run down by the rushing water and never appeared again.
As soon as it was known that the collision had occurred, a number of tugs and boats of all descriptions went to the scene and rendered what service they could in picking up the living and dead floating among the wreckage. The greatest loss of life is reported to have occurred among the steerage passengers, of whom there were twenty-three on board. Only two of these are accounted for. The others are regarded as lost. They were on the lower deck of the steamer at the time of the collision, and there was no opportunity to warn them of danger, or render them assistance afterwards. The cabin passengers numbered seventy, and of these ten are lost. There is still much doubt as to the number of persons lost.

In Paris a man picks up a living by going about the streets playing on a clarinet through a canula placed in a hole in his throat after the operation of tracheotomy.
When he finishes a little tune he takes the canula out and exhibits it to the audience, to show that there is no deception.
